UserWay Service

UserWay exerts commercial efforts to ensure that its Products enable Licensee’s Website to become compliant with the WCAG 2.1 level AA success criteria (the “WCAG Standard”).

When the Free-Widget is embedded into Licensee’s Website, Licensee’s Website will make available user-triggered accessibility enhancements enabling Licensee’s Website to become more accessible for some users once accessibility functions are manually enabled by an end-user of Licensee Website.

When the AI-Widget is embedded into Licensee’s Website, Licensee’s Website will become substantially more accessible in accordance with the provisions of the WCAG Standard, with little-to-no intervention required by the Licensee’s Website administrator(s), developer(s) and/or end-users.

When the Scanner’s violation reports and instructions for remediation with regards to the applicable scanned and monitored Licensee’s Website are followed and implemented by Licensee Website administrators or developers, such Licensee’s Website will become substantially more accessible in accordance with the provisions of the WCAG Standard. Without limiting the foregoing, and for the avoidance of doubt, this applies to all the code within scope of the Scanner (HTML) and not to non-HTML items made available on the Licensee Website such as PDF, Audio, Video, etc.
Should You provide Us with a written notice regarding any error or deviation from the WCAG Standard, We can assist You in repairing such error or deviation (the "Professional Services"). Any such notice concerning a violation must be as detailed and as specific as possible and include reference to the exact component of Licensee's Website that is not accessible. Without limiting the foregoing and for the avoidance of doubt, We undertake to use reasonable commercial efforts to (a) offer you Professional Services; (b) advise You of how to make Licensee Websites compliant; and (c) address and remediate such violations within the scope of Our Products' technical capabilities, provided however, that in each case, You shall be solely responsible for the implementation of our instructions.
